

Abstract

A method of processing an image taken with a digital camera including an auto exposure setting, the method comprising the step of utilising the information to process a sensed image, 5 utilising step comprises utilising the auto exposure setting to determine an advantageous re-mapping of colours within the image so as to produce an amended image such as adding exposure specific graphics to said image.